President’s Message

"May you live in interesting times" is supposed to be an ancient Chinese curse. It's not ancient and it's not Chinese, but we may get a chance to find out if it is truly a curse. Things really are getting interesting.

What a year for surprises.

Of the four people running for president and vice president only one is a middle aged white male (and he's pretty advanced in middle age). Seniors, women and African Americans are represented. If you ignore the issues and vote by race, gender or age group, you're sure to find an appropriate choice.

The American economic juggernaut of Wall Street is in a shambles and a bailout is suggested for only a measly $700 billion. And can you imagine that Congress balks at giving up that amount of money without any controls or conditions?

The Tampa Bay (Devil) Rays are in FIRST PLACE! Really!

What does it all mean? There have been floods and famine, plagues and war, we can expect that in any year, but this one seems to be special.

I'm short on psychic powers, so I can't tell if things are going to turn out all right, but we'll try not to get too stressed by all the apparent madness in money and politics this year.
